Formula 1 goes OTT

Until 2018, F1 only distributed through traditional TV

F1 changed approach this year:

“We have an obligation to our fans, quite candidly, to ensure they are able to access our content in any means they want. We would be derelict if we pursued a path for anything other than that.” Sean Batch F1 Commercial Director

Launched an OTT app in April:

- F1 TV Pro – Feature live races and all 20 driver cameras, as well as all Access features
- F1 TV Access – No live, race timing data, radio broadcasts, and extended highlights
- Annual: $70-$100, Monthly: $8-$12

Geoblocked to prevent license conflicts

What F1 TV does for the sport

One: Improves the traditional TV experience

- People with live races on TV have a reason to get F1 TV Access

Two: Will grow the international audience

- Many regions don't have F1 on TV
- Sport is by its nature a world sport

Three: Audience is widely dispersed

The Internet is great at aggregating large, dispersed audiences into an addressable market

Four: Deep Engagement for everyone

- Coverage is limited to just the races
- F1 TV is available all the time, everywhere

Conclusion

Escalation in costs of sports rights will continue

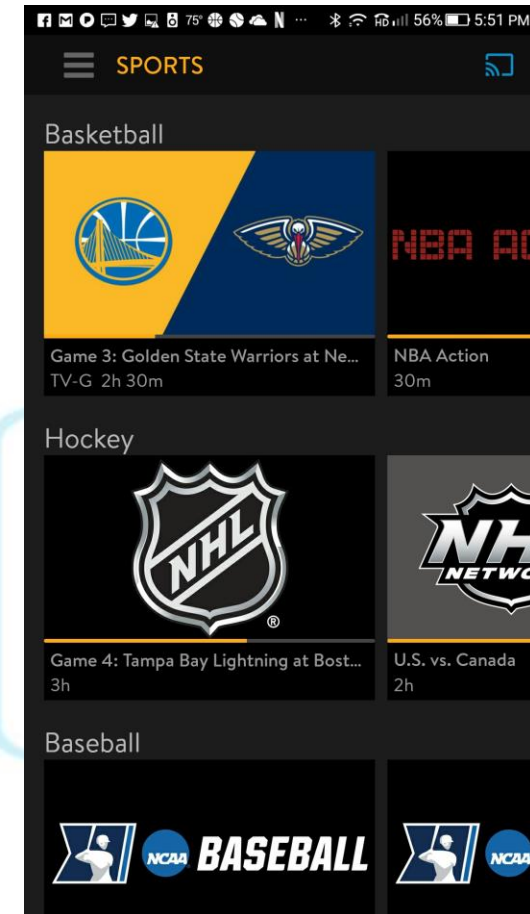

- Online providers will help push rights costs up

Sports not enough to hold people to traditional TV

- TV audiences will continue to decline
- As audience's attention moves online

Teams, leagues, organizations are innovating with OTT delivery

- Expand audiences
- Deepen engagement
- Support traditional TV experience
